PREFACE

The first edition of the Index to Languages and Dialects was prepared in the early 1930's by Miss L. Belle Voegelein, at that time classifier in charge of philology, among other subjects. After testing by application to current books it was published in 1936 for wider administrative purposes and for other libraries, especially those using the Library of Congress system of classification.

Since 1936 there have been not inconsiderable developments in the language schedules, P-PA, PB-PH, and PJ-PM, especially in the subclasses PJ, PK, and PL where Arabic and Hebrew of the Semitic languages, Hindū, Hindustānī, and Urdū of the modern languages of India, and the African languages have received increasing attention. This second edition of the index contains entries for all the languages new to the printed schedules, and revised entries where additions and changes have affected the old. For the first time, entries are qualified to show the language group to which a language belongs, e. g. Bangala (Bantu) : PL 8055.

As in the earlier edition the index includes, besides the names of languages, references to special regions, islands, etc., of interest to the philologist, as well as references to special literatures and, in the case of the lesser known languages, individual authors or works. Entries are arranged in regular alphabetical sequence except that the umlauts ä, ö, and ü in German and the individual letters ä and ö in Scandinavian languages are read as ae, oe, and ue respectively; also Danish and Norwegian ø and Swedish and Norwegian å are read as oo and aa respectively; in other languages letter modifications are disregarded in determining sequence of words.

This second edition is the work of Miss Voegelein, Editor of Classification Schedules, who also edited the copy for the press.
